

GCET MBA 2011 - Gujarat MBA Entrance Exam

GCET MBA 2011 will be conducted earlier

Every year, Gujarat Common Entrance Test (GCET) for MBA and MCA being conducted in the month of April-May. Gujarat Technological University (GTU) is considering to conduct GCET 2011 earlier as compared to last year. According to unofficial news, GTU has decided to conduct GCET 2011 in the month of February. Official announcement may come in the month of December, 2010.

The decision was taken to help the MCA/MBA colleges to finish the admission process early as well as it will also reduce students waiting time.

According to source the announcement will come in December, 2010 and examination will be conducted in the last week of February, 2011.

There are a lot of questions like whether the students will be able to submit final year marksheet on time or not as majority of the universities declares their results in May-June only. GTU will request universities to declare results as compared to every year.

Our Views:

GCETMBA.com experts have different views for early schedule of the exams. In Gujarat and India, majority of private MBA colleges/institutes complete their admission process before May-June. Due to that reason sometimes it become difficult for the newly launched MBA colleges to get students. Last year, even after three rounds of admission process, around 1500 seats remained vacant.

Disadvantage to students:

There are many students who even don't have clear idea about how to clear GCET and what will be the syllabus. Students will have confusion about which preparation should be given priority: GCET or Final year exam. if a student pass in GCET but couldn't get 50% in in final year, he/she will not be eligible.
